

An Indian Romance.

The Lucknow Times tells us that a little while ago a gentleman, described as of rather prepossessing appearance, came to that place, bringing with him letters of introduction to several people in moderate circumstances. With these people he lived, and having represented himself as a gentleman of substance, being sole owner and possessor of one lakh and fifty thousand rupees, was treated with the utmost deference and courtesy, and, further, was permitted to gain the affections of a young lady whose only personal attractions appeared to be a profusion of valuable jewelry she constantly sported. The young lady explained that her father was an extra assistant commissioner stationed at some distance less than a thousand miles from Oomoo, and possessing an estate of immense value, to which she was the heiress. A match was soon arranged, and the young couple, as happy as wealth and all that combined could make them, were married, and left Lucknow on their wedding tour a few days ago. And here the tale, to be happy end, should end; but, unfortunately, this is not the end of the tale. The gentleman took his bride to Poxar, where it turned out that he was engaged in the only detectable and highly remunerative profession of fireman on the East India Railway, drawing the meagre salary of forty rupees a month, and it was with feelings of unfeigned anguish that he felt his duty to inform the lady that the lakh and a half of the rupees were in the hands of another party, who obstinately refused to give up the money on the ground of his being the rightful owner of it. The bride bore the disappointment with some equanimity, and informed her husband, with a regretful regret, that a similar difficulty existed with regard to her father's estate near Oomoo. The estate was there all right of course, but it was encumbered to such an extent that it was impossible to get it. The nature of the encumbrance was so extremely peculiar; an old zemindar had another estate on top of it, and had stoutly refused to take it off. And the whole of the valuable jewelry, which had proved so excellent a bait, had been returned to the bride's sister and the other ladies from whom it had been borrowed for the occasion. It is said that the pair bear their common disappointment with a very good grace, and are as happy as can be expected under the circumstances.

KNOCKED ABOUT IN THE WORLD.—It is a good thing for a young man to be "knocked about in the world," though his portly parents may not think so. All youths, or if not all, nineteen twentieths of the sum total enter life with a surplus of self-conceit. If, in measuring themselves with wiser and older men than they are, they discover that it is unwarranted, and get rid of it gracefully, of their own accord, well and good; if not, it is desirable, for their own sakes, that it be knocked out of them. A boy who is sent to a school soon finds his level. His may have been jaunty at home, but school boys are democratic in their ideas, and if arrogant are sure to be thrashed into a recognition of the golden rule. The world is a great public school, and it soon teaches a new pupil his proper place. If he has the attributes that belong to a leader he will be established in the position of a leader; if not, whatever his own opinion of his abilities may be, he will be compelled to fall in with rank and file. It is not destined to greatness, the next best thing to which he can aspire is respectability; but no man can be truly great or respectable who is vain, pious and overbearing.

By the time the novice has found his legitimate social position, be the same high or low, the probability is that the disagreeable traits of his character will be softened down or worn away. His likely process of abrasion will be rough, but when it is all over, and he begins to see himself as others see him, and not as reflected in the mirror of self-conceit, he will be thankful that he has run the gauntlet, and arrived, though by a rough road, at self-knowledge. Upon the whole, whatever loving mothers may think to the contrary, it is a good thing for youths to be knocked about in the world—it makes men of them.

Through a long series of years, it has been the favorite of the race of men it has risen high and higher in their estimation, as it has become better known. Its uniform character and power to cure the various affections of the lungs and throat, have made it known as a reliable protector against them. While adapted to milder forms of disease and to young children, it is at the same time the most effectual remedy that can be given for the most dangerous and dangerous affections of the lungs, such as Croup, Whooping Cough, and Consumption. It is a household remedy, and is in every family, and indeed as all are sometimes subject to colds and coughs, all should be provided with this antidote for them.

Ayer's Hair Vigor.

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. This hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous, and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a
